

---

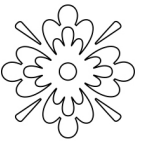

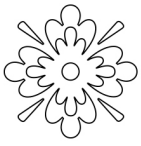

Welcome
To

Our celebration of the life of

❧ Judyth Harsent ❧

15th October 1935 - 19th May 2023

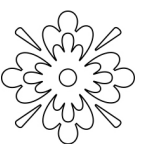

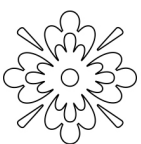

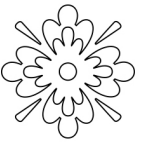

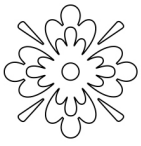

---

I know it may sound a little funny, at first,
But it's really true,
And I want you to know-
That having you in my life
Is really enough for me
To be happy...

Sometimes it seems like
Everyone talks of 'needing this'
And 'wanting this...'
And seems to fill their days
With thoughts of acquiring new things
For themselves, and of attaching a lesser
Value to the things they already have
That are really so valuable
And so important...

---

Entry to Morning Has Broken sung by Cat
Stevens

Eulogy - Simon

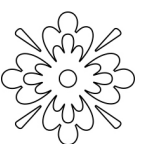

Reading - Jacob

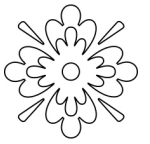

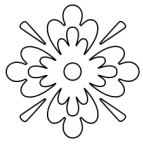

Visual tribute accompanied by Bring Him
Home from Les Miserables

Committal

Closing thoughts

Leave to Moon River sung by Andy Williams

---

Happy Judyth Memories

“Caravan holidays with Nana and Peter and of course the donkey sanctuary visits.”

“Lovely smells as soon as you walked in the door of either lunch cooking or cakes baking to eat later.”

“Learning to sew using cardboard stencils and always looking forward to seeing what new bits she had in her craft cupboard.”

“Watching the definitely Disney rip off VHS tapes - Snow White, Pocahontas & Alice in Wonderland were personal favourites.”

“Always playing her albums on a Sunday morning. West Side Story, Lennon & McCartney, Tell Me On A Sunday.”

“Driving home in her first car after she passed her test and being overtaken by someone in a disability car that only went 15mph... turns out she had left the handbrake on.”

“Throwing my ham sandwich out the window only for Henry to bring it back and eat it in the hallway... Nana wasn't impressed.”

“Spaghetti Bolognese!!”

